

Coaching the Pyramid: Goal Writing Practice

This document will be use in the Practice-Based Coaching sessions to practice writing goals.

Example Goal

What practice to use: Teach a daily, visual schedule

When to use: Every day during morning circle, before centers, after lunch, and before children go outside

How to use: Review each picture of the visual schedule of the beginning of every morning circle. Have a schedule helper remove pictures of completed activities after all major activities. Provide positive descriptive feedback when children are moving from activity to activity.

Scenario

Jake wants to work on providing children with positive reminders about posted expectations and rules in his classroom. The expectations and rules have already been developed and taught, but he continues to spend a lot of time redirecting children during circle time and center time. How could this be written as a goal?

What practice to use:

When to use:

How to use:

Michigan's MTSS Technical Assistance Center is funded by the Michigan Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Special Education Programs.